THE VESSEL

A single-owner Sundancer — joystick docking, boat-show spec.

Sau Ping is a 2021 Sea Ray Sundancer 350 — a single-owner boat ordered as a Seattle Boat Show special with essentially every box ticked. Twin MerCruiser 8.2L V-drive inboards produce 375 horsepower each with just 600 hours logged, and Mercury joystick control with Skyhook alongside a Vetus bow thruster make a 35-foot express cruiser genuinely easy to handle single-handed.

The cockpit is built for entertaining: a large U-shaped settee with filler cushions that convert it into a transom sun pad, a chaise lounge to port of the helm, double swivel helm chairs with flip-up bolsters, and a beverage centre with Kenyon electric grill, Dometic refrigerator and sink. Upgraded SeaDek runs through the cockpit and out onto the extended swim platform. Overhead sits a hardtop sunroof with blue accent lighting and a retractable six-foot SureShade awning, and the full canvas enclosure with upgraded isinglass — a $26,000 factory upgrade — pushes the season well past Labor Day.

Below there are three separate sleeping areas: a forward queen with privacy curtain, a salon settee that converts to a midship berth, and an aft queen that splits into two twins. The galley carries refrigerator, microwave, stovetop and sink, and the head has a Vacuflush toilet, vessel sink and a fully separate shower stall — genuinely hard to find at thirty-five feet.

Navigation is a Simrad 14-inch touchscreen with charts, radar, GPS and sonar alongside SmartCraft engine control. A Westerbeke generator, Fusion stereo with ten Kicker Coastal speakers, three Samsung televisions and an Intervac central vacuum round out the package. Offered at $379,999, lying Des Moines Marina.
